YITRO Hearing of the Israelite's triumphs, Jethro, Moses' father-in-law, visits the people, and notices that Moses is overloaded listening to the people's grievances. Jethro convinces Moses to create a council of elders to assist in this task. Promising to make the Israelites a "kingdom of priests," God promises to make a series of utterances to the people at Mount Sinai. Moses urges the people to prepare themselves. The people witness a majestic scene of thunder and lightning. God announces 10 maxims on topics relating to devotion to God, honoring parents and the Sabbath, and refraining from crimes like murder, theft, adultery and falsehood. Though the Israelites are scared of the scene, Moses calms them.
